

DINI CERTIFICATE 2013

FOR OPEN ACCESS REPOSITORIES
AND PUBLICATION SERVICES

AIMS AND OBJECTIVES

Improving the publication infrastructure for electronic publishing

Strengthen Open Access based forms of publishing

The DINI Certificate

- communicates benchmarks, guidelines, and best practices
- yields effects for operators
- yields effects for funding bodies

The DINI Certificate

- yields effects for scientists / scholars
- causes an actual improvement of a publication service's quality
- works as a mark of quality

CRITERIA

1. Visibility of the Service

2. Policy

3. Support of Authors and Publishers

4. Legal Aspects

5. Information Security

6. Indexing and Interfaces

7. Access Statistics

8. Long-Term Availability

WORKFLOW

DINI-ready Pre-evaluation for Hosting Services

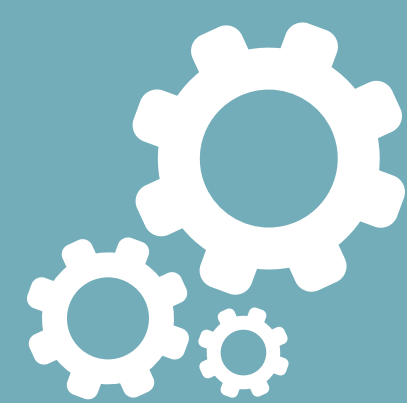

Hosting Service: Preselection of DINI-ready Criteria

DINI Reviewers: Assessment and Evaluation

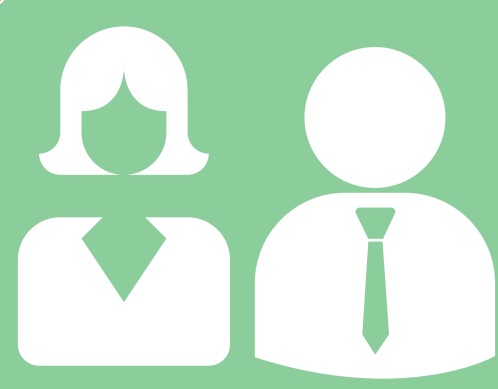

To the Starting Point for ...

Semi-automated Validation using OAI-Validator

Service Operator: Completing Questionnaire

DINI Reviewers: Assessment and Evaluation

DINI Certification for Services with and without a DINI-ready evaluated Hosting Service

The DINI Certificate is a Work of the DINI Working Group „Electronic Publishing“.

<http://dini.de/english>

DOWNLOAD

<http://edoc.hu-berlin.de/series/dini-certificate-2013-awards/dini-certifikat-2013-en.pdf>

Poster for the Open-Access-Tage 2015, Zurich, Switzerland, 7 - 8, September 2015

Paul Vierkant (paul.vierkant@oa.helmholtz.de), Helmholtz Association, Helmholtz Open Science Coordination Office, Potsdam, Germany
Dennis Zielke (dennis.zielke@cms.hu-berlin.de), Humboldt-Universität zu Berlin, Computer and Media Service, Germany
Uwe Müller (U.Mueller@dnb.de), German National Library, Germany
Heinz Pempel (heinz.pempel@oa.helmholtz.de), Helmholtz Association, Helmholtz Open Science Coordination Office, Potsdam, Germany
Frank Scholze, frank.scholze@kit.edu, Karlsruhe Institute of Technology (KIT), KIT Library, Karlsruhe, Germany

Except where otherwise noted, content on this poster is licensed under a Creative Commons Attribution 4.0 International license.

