5. SCAR wins the Prince of Asturias Award for International Cooperation in 2002

The ICSU Scientific Committee on Antarctic Research (SCAR) has been honored by the Prince of Asturias Award for International Cooperation in 2002 for their international collaboration in Antarctica. SCAR was established in 1958 with the 12 countries that were undertaking Antarctic research during the International Geophysical Year (1957-58). SCAR initiates, promotes, and coordinates scientific research in the Antarctic system. The membership of SCAR is now 32 countries and the Secretariat is at the Scott Polar Research Institute, University of Cambridge, Cambridge, United Kingdom. The IUGG liaison to SCAR is Prof. R. Schlich (France). For further information on SCAR, visit <http://www.scar.org>.

The Prince of Asturias Foundation, a non-profit organization that aims to promote the Sciences, Technology, Concord, Arts, and Letters, established annual awards in 1980 to honor individuals, groups, and institutions whose achievements are examples for all mankind. Each award is comprised of a diploma, Joan Miró sculpture, and a cash prize of 50,000 Euros. HRH Crown Prince Felipe of Spain presents the awards annually at a prestigious ceremony in Asturias, Spain. For further information on the Prince of Asturias Awards, visit <http://www.fpa.es>.
